DOCUMENTATION

The cold season is upon us once more, and many of us are thinking about getting the Influenza vaccine to help avoid the unpleasant symptoms and sometimes dangerous consequences of this viral infection. For those who have opted for the flu vaccine, homeopathy can reinforce the vaccine's action, and for those who have decided not to get vaccinated, homeopathy offers a natural solution without side effects.

Our immunoglobulin A protects and defends us from the various viruses and bacteria we encounter on a daily basis, be it by inhalation or by ingestion. At this early stage, a healthy person's immunoglobulin A will be able to fend off any offensive pathogens. However, a person whose immune system is deficient because of stress, fatigue, chronic illness, or bad eating habits, will have more trouble defending themselves against attacking viruses and bacteria. At this stage, the invading pathogen crosses over into the bloodstream and the immune system is called into action. It is at this point that we generally begin to experience the symptoms of the illness: fever, cough, congestion, aches and pains, shivers, etc.
